Another Liberal Victory

New Brunswick yesterday had a double importance. Coming immediately after the defeat of Quebec's Union Nationale it 'showed that the Diefenbaker Government is in serious trouble with the electorate east of Ontario as it certainly is on the Prairies also.

Secondly, New Brunswick, half of whose people are French-Canadians, has chosen a young man of that race, Mr. Robichaud, as its While the Frenchpremier. Canadians of the St. Lawrence and the Acadians of the Maritimes had little contact in earlier days their association is becoming closer and the Governments of Quebec and New Brunswick doubtless will work intimately together.

. Presumably the Conservative Government of Mr. Flemming, a fine and highly respected man, was rejected mainly on local issues, but his defeat cannot fail to shake the Federal Conservative Party in the Maritimes. Since the re-election of the Flemming Government had been taken almost for granted in Ottawa yesterday's vote must come as a great shock to Mr. Diefenbaker after the Conservative success in Nova Scotia.

Two Maritime provinces, New Brunswick and Newfoundland, are now in the possession of the Liberal Party. Re-established in Quebec, its recovery from the disaster of 1958 is now definitely underway. As reflected in the Maritime elections and the defeat of every Conservative candidate in Saskatchewan, the Diefenbaker Government seems to be losing its hold on the nation. For the first time it can be said that

THE LIBERAL VICTORY IN the result of the next federal election is in grave doubt.

The New Brunswick poll had a special and ironical interest in British Columbia. Here the Liberal Government of Mr. Byron Johnson was defeated largely because it financed its pioneer scheme of hospital insurance by direct premiums and raised them as the cost of hospitalization increased. The Bennett Government transferred these costs to general revenue and raised the sales tax.

In New Brunswick it was a Conservative Government that insisted on retaining the premium system and the Liberals who promised to abolish it. The new Robichauc Government will now be compelled to find more revenue probably with a tax increase of some sort. It is always popular to smuggle the costs of a public service into the general

Lesson of Democracy Yet to Be Learned

WHEN I was in Japan last winter one of its ablest political thinkers told Another significant aspect of the me that Japanese democracy must soon confront a deep crisis. The crisis has come sooner than he expected and it may be even deeper than he feared. But it is not exactly the crisis that Western reader of riot and anti-Amerin Japan would be grave enough if it involved only the fate of the Security Treaty with the United States, the immediate cause of the riots, and the political prospects of that quar-relling coalition which styles itself the Liberal-Democratic party.

NEITHER of them is indispensable. The only indispensable thing, for the West and for the freedom of the Japanese people, is the democratic pro-cess itself. And clearly it is in mortal danger after less than 15 years of life. It is in danger not because its stitutional machinery was wrongly vised by the Americans in the first place, since the constitution, a blend of American and British methods, has the virtues of both. It is in danger because the Japanese people were outwardly but not inwardly prepared for this sudden revolution, this explosion of freedom detoated by the same hands that dropped the first atomic bomb on Hiro shima.

telligence, for they are among the most intelligent people in the world. They did not lack scholastic education, acy in the world. Certainly they did not lack discipline, patriotism, courage or industry, for no people has ever exthem in these qualities. What they lacked was experience and, more important, an instinct for the democratic

As a result, we see in Japan today a classic lesson in the hidden, unwritten, purely instinctive and decisive side of the parliamentary system. No constitution, however water-tight and fool-proof, will make the parliamentary system work. It will work only if an entire people accepts certain standards of behavior, above all the rule of the majority, that no law can precisely specify, much less enforce.

TAPAN'S new parliamentary system is threatened because a substantial minority of people, skilfully organized and thoroughly intoxicated by the agents of a foreign, anti-democratic system, does not accept these standards and, indeed, does not understand them. Not understanding them, the minority uses the freedom guaranteed by the constitution to destroy it by an attack nsibly at the United State but in fact against the institution of

To be sure, the leaders of the attack, men who use mobs to coerce parliament when they cannot win elections, know exactly what they are doing. They don't believe in parliament. In Tokyo these men gave me the usual, well-re-hearsed patter of democratic ideals, they professed their devotion to human liberty but their party line would fool pabedly.

So they have grasped them in the last few weeks, hanging their campaign on the handy pegs of the Se curity Treaty (which they mispresent almost comically) and Mr. Eisenhower's intended visit to Japan.

These men quickly mastered the lessons of Communism, just as Japan has repeatedly absorbed and mastered techniques of foreign industry with an unequalled genius of imitation. But ern democracy is not so easily learned.

Unlike Communism, with its neat, doit-yourself charts and infallible dialect tics, unlike the mechanical techniques of industry, democracy cannot be taught overnight, or in 15 years, or in several generations. Its rules are too subtle for that—the rules are unwritten in any constitution, the rules that can be written only in men's minds, and more in the unconscious than in the

THUS Japanese democracy, young and frail as it is, may survive its Uniform Prices. present overt crisis but, if so, it can only win a reprieve, a chance to educate a new generation of truly democratic politicians leading a truly democratic electorate, to learn a system not too well learned in the West after some centuries of trial and error.

Japan's ultimate Western import will require long digestion, and whatever the American-made constitution may say, we can be sure that the Japanese will revise and adapt it to their own needs and their own nature. Why shouldn't they? If democracy means anything it means that a people may do what they

tee behaved on Wednesday like a reformed delinquent. Not a cruel word

Although it has been demonstrated in various cases that domestic combines are frequently by products of international cartels, it has never been an offence for companies to fix prices for foreign sale.

Mr. Norman Hyland, representing the Fisheries Council of Canada and the B.C. Fisheries Association, testified that the salmon companies had been doing this to the best of their ability for 60 years. Why then the present concern with Mr. Fulton's legislation?

Mr. Hyland explained that, on the request of certain fishermen, the com-bines branch had recently instituted an inquiry into the practices of the salmon companies.

It should be observed that there has been no court action, let alone a prose-cution. But the fisheries association has received a statement from the combines director alleging that practices followed in setting prices for export salmon have had the effect of enhancing domestic prices.

In foreign markets the B.C. canners compete not only with the Americans but also with a Japanese cartel and the Soviet State Trading Agency, (Mr. Hyland filed a letter from the Japanese cartel stating the unofficial opening price for 1959 which, however, was stated to be dependent on prices set by other exporters.)

To meet this competition the in dustry wishes to retain its present right to set uniform prices by agreement. It concedes, however, that the domestic price of any commodity exported in quantity cannot be isolated from the world price. This being the case, canners feel that they are bound to be objects of suspicion unless specifically protected by amendments to the Fulton

Mr. Hyland had a specific proposal. He wished to insert in the legislation a definition of export frade as "trade in articles manufactured, produced, pro-cessed, transported or sold for con-sumption or use without Canada."

This would be complemented by a new section specifying that: "This act does not relate to export trade.'

He was supported by Mr. Nicholson referring directly to the case of Howard Smith Paper Mills versus The Queen, in which a judge noted that the court was required to look at the arrangement and not to inquire into the actual or in-tended effects on the Canadian public.

It became apparent under questioning that Mr. Hyland's apparently simple ing that Mr. Hyland's apparently simple and innocent amendments would in fact lead to enormous difficulties. While the witness was insistent that the salmon canners completely divorced their foreign from their domestic busi-ness, he conceded readily enough that the Canadian market (protected by a 15 per cent tariff) was particularly valuable, being relatively stable and more remunerative than foreign outlets.

His argument appeared to be that the domestic price followed the world price and would do so whether present industry arrangements were sanctioned or not. But the majority of members The "at home" on appeared skeptical that the supposed divorce was complete.

Mr. Pickersgill suggested that, with the proposed amendment, companies could exchange information as to the proportion of the pack intended to the proposed to domestic market and in effect form a combination without specific mention of price.

Mr. McIlwraith, apparently nickel in mind, made the point that any such amendments would benefit not only companies facing harsh competitive conditions abroad but also others fortunate enough to enjoy a dominating position both at home and overseas.

Cool Heads Behind the Hot Words?

IT IS SO MUCH A PART OF Western wishful thinking to perceive dissension within the Communist camp that the present apparent quarrel between Moscow and Peking should be approached with caution. Like Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, we should find the situation "interesting," but "bet too much on actual or alleged splits" between the Red

At the same time, recently published comments in Russia and China indicate that all is not in harmony between Mr. Khrushchev and Mao Tse-tung. Sharp words have been said which, in the involved manner of Communist pronouncements, contain even sharper implications. It is the problem of the West to importance, and not see as a funda-mental cleavage what may be only a passing conflict of personality or a dispute as to procedure.

At the moment, considerable weight may be given the "affair." The Russo-Chinese background can explain much of Mr. Khrushchev's passionate diatribes at Paris, his insulting rejection of Mr. Eisenhower which whom he had formerly been achieving a notable diplomatic friendship.

The theory is that one Kremlin faction, with small liking for Mr. Khrushchev's increasing tolerance of the capitalist West, had found titself with strong support from the Chinese. This had been sufficient to turn the scales against Mr. Khrush-chev and force him into a reversal of sentiments, if not of policy. But shortly afterward Mr. Khrushchev appeared to reassert his power, and Pravda, obviously with the leader's approval, on June 13 launched a sharp attack on "leftist" critics of Mr. Khrushchev and strongly supported his policy of negotiation with West as being well within the Marxist-Leninist doctrine.

This was a rap at Russian critics, but it was a much more significant shot at Peking. Mr. Khrushchev has followed it up with a still more outspoken statement in Bucharest: that he would not budge an inch from his policy of peaceful coexistence with capitalist states. He earlier had said that only "fools and madmen" would consider a war today, and that such a conflict is not inevitable.

This, of course, runs directly counter to the original Communist doctrine that an ultimate war between communism and capitalism cannot be avoided. But Lenin enunciated that principle in a world which did not yet dream of the nuclear bomb.

It is the letter which the Chinese — not yet possessing nuclear weapons — appear to uphold, and we can only conclude that this, in Mr. Khrushchev's view, puts them in the class of "fools and madmen."

The Chinese, on their part, have denounced modern revisionists obviously including Mr. Khrushchev — who have diverged from Lenin's teachings. They see a desire to community certainly needs more water as a shortage is inevitable if it continues to grow yet so short-sighted are those responsible that the work on the tunnel has been discontinued.

The Good Citizen

THE CHOICE OF FRANK MACkenzie Ross as Good Citizen of Greater Victoria for 1960 is one that will receive popular approval. The title is no mere appendage to high office, no mere gesture toward a person already loaded with hon-ors, for it is conferred only for good deeds, for consistently good work by an individual for his fellow men.

Lieutenant-Governor Ross, in-deed, is the only man holding that position to have received the Good Citizen award; he shares the honor with many much humbler citizens. It is that which makes his choice outstanding, for it is tangible proof that he has brought to the vice-regaloffice much more than formality and protocol, much more than the position demands. He has given it the added touch of humanity, of position demands. MINISTER CRITICIZES MORNING DERBIES

Sunday's for Church, Not Fish

criticized by Rev. George Harrington preaching at Brentwood College Memorial Chapel, Brentwood Bay, Sunday

Mr. Harrington said the fishing derbies at Brentwood Bay are "a serious threat" to attendance at Sunday, morning church

"Is it essential that these derbies should take 'eight' hours of the morning' he asked. "Could they not be split up between the early morning and evening when tidal conditions would be very little different or held on a Saturday afternoon when the majority of people are not working?"

Mr. Harrington, who came here from Quebec in 1956, said:

"Attendance at our worship services is by no means what it should be. Those who have been confirmed in the last three years are not very regular communicants and the younger members of the choir seem to find it hard to attend practices."

REV. HARRINGTON ... why not Saturday

Boys and girls, he added, should be discouraged from playing baseball, basketball, and other games on Sunday mornings. "It is a fine thing to teach boys and girls" the team spirit . . . but such activities provide little of any moral value and need not be held on Sunday mornings.

Mr. Harrington was also critical of the imber of families who go beating on Sunday mornings when they could do so at other times.

He suggested that families who take weekend cruises could "find time and a church where they can give thanks and praise to God."

Mr. Harrington deplored the "almost universal acceptance of a materialistic view of life," and said:

"The common idea of a successful life nowadays does not mean the achievement of some high purpose that will be of bene-fit to mankind, but rather the obtaining of a good means of livelihood . . . or a little transient fame."

Soviet Brass Smiling

Soviet tennis officials are strolling around the Wimbledon courts with smiling faces-and talking of the day when a Russian will win a title.

Anna Dmitrieva, a darkhaired 19-year-old, has put Russia on the tennis map.

She is out of women's singles, beaten by the No. 2 seed, Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., in the fourth round. But before she bowed out she gave the American Wightman Cup star one of the biggest frights she has ever

"We are still beginners tennis. We came here to gain experience. This is visible progress. We have more good players in the Soviet Union and are ready to bring a larger team next year if the Wimbledon committee will have them.

Belitz - Geiman said about 70,000 persons play tennis in the Soviet Union. This is only the third year the Russians have competed at Wimbledon.

Anna, who is studying French literature at Moscov University said smilingly through an interpreter:

"I never thought I would get through three rounds. And when I had to play Darlene Hard, I never imagined I would win a set off her. She is a wonderful player."

Golfers, like people, are working stiffs. Most of the local threats have sudgeted their holidays in order to take part in the PNGA and B.C. Amateur.

Participation in those two events as well as in the B.C. Open would mean almost three full weeks of golfing.

The Royal Canadian Golf Association is considering a qualifying round for the Canadian Open, the first time in the tournament's history.

Robbie Robinson, secretary manager of the RCGA, said in Toronto Monday that already more than 200 entries have been received for the $27,000 tournament to be played Entries for the competition do not close until tonight and tournament officials say many more are expected. The previous highest number was 194, in 1955.

Reason for the qualifying round is that it will be impossible to handle a field of more than 200 entries in one day.

NURSE SAYS 'DISHONEST' HALIFAX (CP) - Hospital insurance premiums are being used to finance nursing education, research and technical operations, Canadian nurses were told here.

Mary L. Richmond, director of nursing at the Royal Jubilee Hospital in Victoria, said premiums, one way in which some provinces are financing the hospital insurance plan, were being misused. She condemned the reductions as "dishonest" in a panel discussion of the implications of hospital insurance plans for nursing at the 30th biennial conference of the CNA

"It is not honest to the public that we should ask them to pay for patient care when in fact they are paying for the board and lodging of nurses who probably live near-the hospitals where they are training.

She said cost of operating nursing schools should be set aside from general hospital costs.

POISONOUS FUMES

No one was seriously in jured though firemen said burning sugar gives off poison

About 200 firemen and four fireboats fought the fire for nearly four hours before it was controlled early today.

The freighter with flames bursting forth amidships was cut from its mooring. It drifted into the main channel where it was halted by a tug. The boat was towed to a Boston harbor anchorage after the fire was put out.

The warehouse and pier blaze belched acrid smoke as flames fed on creosote-im-pregnated pilings. Fire and water turned piles of sugar into syrup.

And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special) For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or infectoremence.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement," was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place

And most amazing of all—the improvement was maintained in gases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!
